Dear Editor,

I realize that the DoDo is an open forum for Cadet humor and provides an outlet for many of the frustrations that we encounter here at USAFA, but sometimes the jokes strike a little too close to home.

Regarding your latest cover illustration of "The U.S. Anti-ICBM Missile" with it's "Multiple Independently-targeted reentry wrenches" and "larger fuel tanks for increased destruction," I think you overstepped the line dividing comedy and tragedy. In an attempt to make fun of the Titan II incident that took place near Damascus, Arkansas recently you failed to consider the human element.

In the December issue of the Air Force Magazine, (pp 40-41) there was an article entitled The US Senate Honors Heroic Titan Crews. It concerned Senate Resolution 529 that stated "the Members of the United States Senate were deeply saddened by the death of US Air Force Sgt. David Livingston." SSgt. Livingston was attempting to penetrate the abandoned Titan silo to assess the damage in an attempt to "control and alleviate the potentially disastrous situation." This was not his specific Air Force responsibility. He was on a totally voluntary mission. He and his partner encountered critical levels of fuel vapors, though, and had to abandon their efforts. Just as they were about to exit the silo the missile exploded, sending Sgt. Livingston sailing some forty feet in the air.

A security policeman who arrived at the scene after the explosion attempted to find survivors in the rubble. He found SSgt. Livingston.

"I told him I would carry him out. He was alive, conscious, hurt. I picked him up like I was cradling a baby, . . . and finally made it to the edge of the complex where others helped me."

Sgt. Livingston died almost immediately.

Resolution 529 says "that the members of the US Senate here assembled, by this Resolution, pay tribute and respect to the heroism of these courageous and patriotic men . . . the exemplary and brave actions of all members of this US Air Force team brought honor to the United States Air Force and this Nation."

I think that the DoDo should try to respect the sacrifices that are made for our continued freedom. That man was one of us, he wore the sky blue that we do. Let us not remember him as the butt of a cadet joke, but as the small hero that he really was.

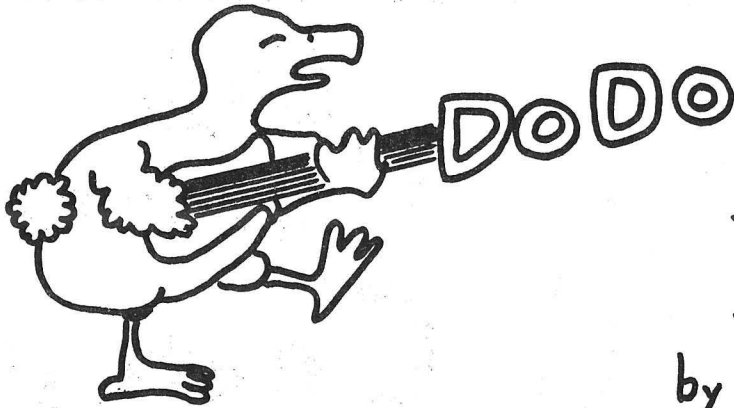

- Name omitted by request

This letter was included to make a point - simply we here at cadet wing media are sensitive to cadet desires and needs. We, the editors of DoDo, would like to sincerely apologize to anyone ever offended by any material in DoDo. We ask that the cadet wing understand that DoDo is published for the sole purpose to promote cadet humor - and no other. Also understand, that what may be humorous to some, may be offensive to others. We make every attempt to omit any form of pornography, profanity, and any other form of socially unacceptable material (such as ethnic jokes), and try to keep it all as funny as possible. But remember, we usually laugh best at ourselves and those around us, so it is impossible to avoid offending someone.

"THE BLUE LIGHTS IN MY REARVIEW MIRROR (are obstructing my view of the hill)" by Gestapo Tactics and the Daydreaming Cops

This catchy album makes extensive use of wailing sirens to bring out the heat in each song. The hit single, "Your License Please", has already been a top draw among the local populace. "Gonna Getcha" and "Double Jeopardy" are up and coming hits.

"LIGHTS ON BUT NO ONE HOME " by Dizzie (Sue Wee) and the little Critters

She sings a host of Country Ballads from the Larado Corral. The High notes are perhaps the most enjoyable in "Get along litt'l Doggies". The backup band featured on this album is The Little Critters and they sure can play as evidenced by the obvious talent shown in "Going Down On the Range".

"ALCOHOL IS NOT GLAMOROUS" by Bettero F. Drunk
Need we say more?

"BARS OF GOLD" by Jim Squint and J.D. Squeel

Sung from high atop the Balcony at the Colorado Country Club, this album makes a real effort at codifying the views of a group of individuals whose opinion means absolutely nothing. Their one song is unique in that it is of Album length. Topics such as , , and , are extensively covered. When asked about the quality of the album, a certain 'critic' replied, "it should be worth about a hundred tours".
