LETTER from the EDITOR:

Well, response to our first issue was great, so we've put out an even better second issue! Wow! Isn't that just terrific of us? I think it is.

Oh, yeah - in the last issue I said "Animals of the Academy" would be in this issue. Well, we're saving it for future use - something for you to look forward to. So don't think you're missing a page or anything.

By the way, I do all this printing by hand. Really, man, I do.

Enjoy the DODO. Force others to read it. Rave about how terrific it is. Friv out over it. Thanks.

In Turn

1. Due to a recent occurrence involving several cadets who exhibited liberal thought, concern has arisen that there is a liberalizing trend among cadets. This sacrilege must be stopped at the roots. In order to purify the wing, we have come up with the following

WAYS TO SPOT POTENTIAL DEMOCRATS:

Service cap worn at slight tilt }
small ears }
clip-on tie }
walks around with smirk on face } lacks supts pin on pocket or does not wear one if he earned one } blue pens in pocket }
wears corfams instead of shining his leathers }
old high school I.D. cards in wallet } picture of female in wallet (male cadets only) }

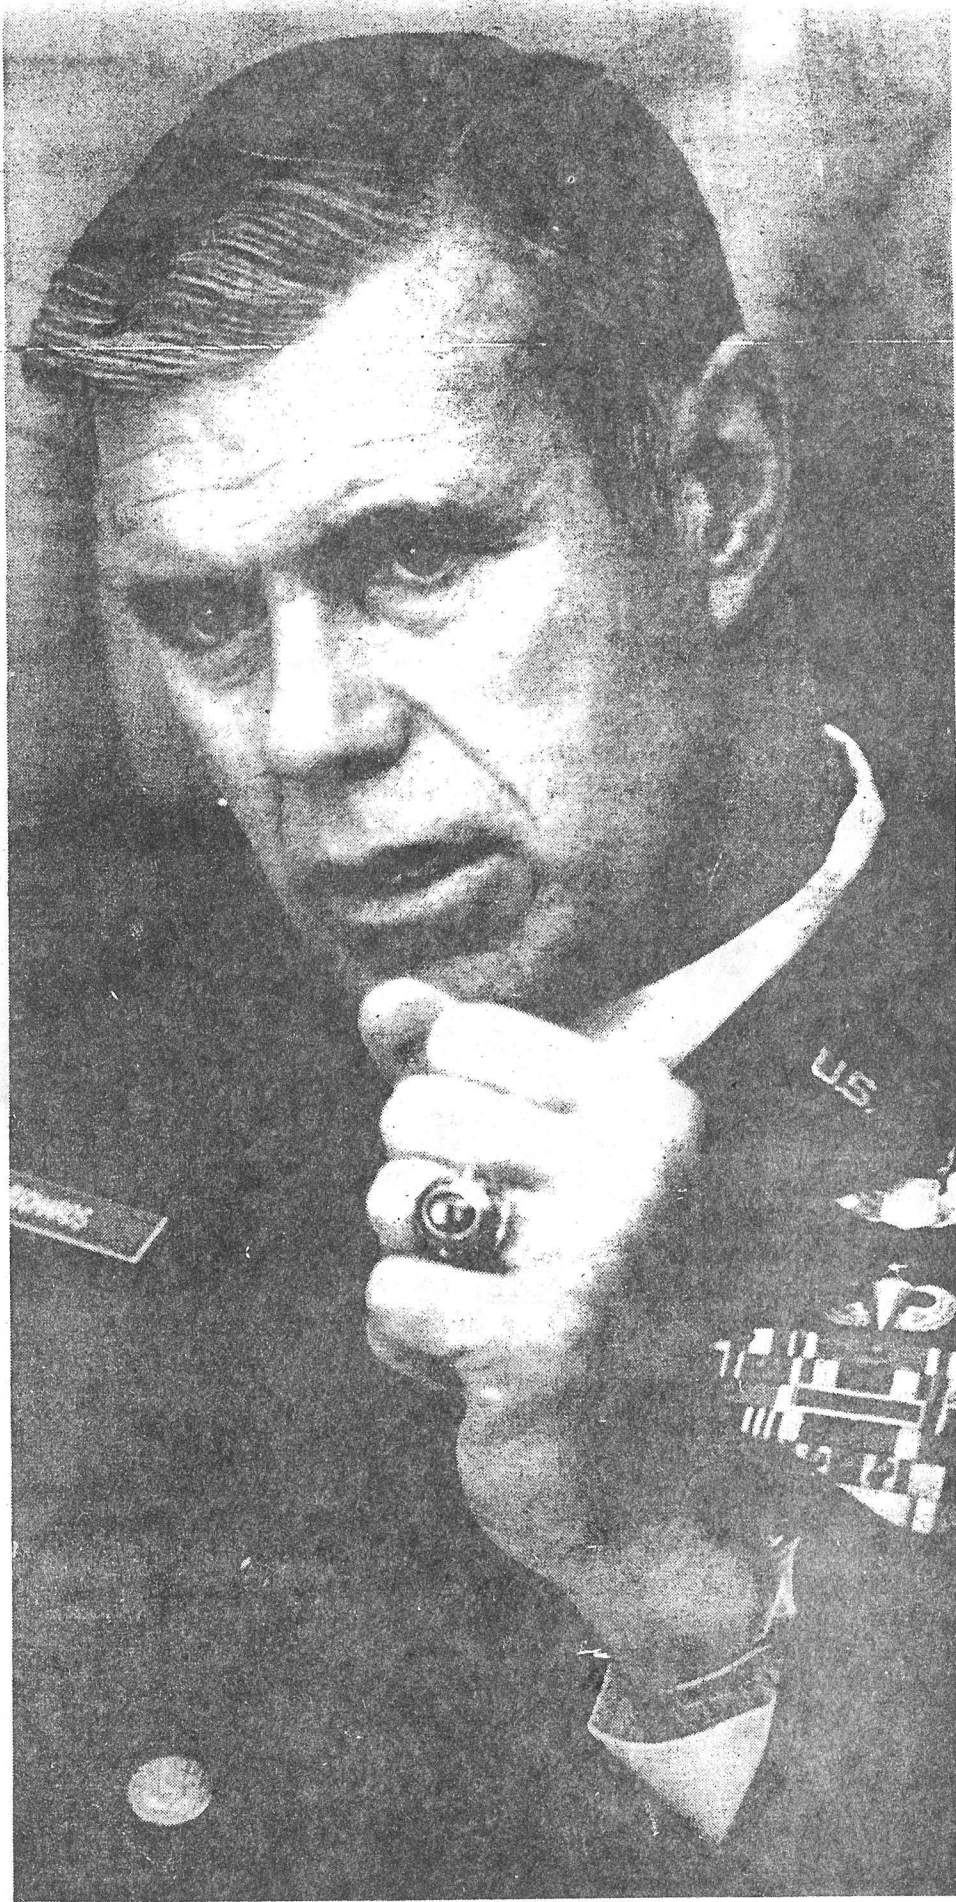

NOTE: Check his room for-

- ✓ civilian letters,
- ✓ record albums released after 1962,
- ✓ bulletin boards with red thumbtacks,
- ✓ blue jeans (closet),
- ✓ plants,

2. If any cadets are seen exhibiting two or more of the above qualities, he should be considered dangerous. Do not engage in conversation with the afflicted individual. Pick up the phone and IMMEDIATELY dial Security Police (2000). Your cooperation will make USAFA a better place.

Richards announces comeback!

You heard it right!
Former Commandant-of-Cadets, Brig. Gen. Thomas C. "Fightin' Tom" Richards has announced that he will attempt to regain the title of "Comm" in a fifteen-bout match with current champ Brig. Gen. Robert D. "Bad Bob" Beckel. Richards says he's been practicing hard since his departure last Spring, and that he is confident he can Comm as well as or better than any living Commandant of Cadets. Beckel could not be reached for comment.

HEAVY HIT

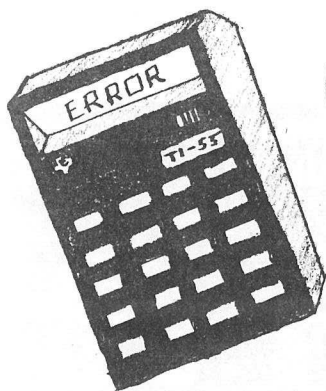

C4C Scott Banks was confused. The year was 2014. It had not been more than two weeks since he was caught in the Cyborg 19 utility room with a squadron maid. But the use of maids was strictly an upperclass privilege. The hit had naturally been heavy - 3 restrictions. There had been stories, as stories will go, about the "leather-shoe days" at the Academy when restrictions were much tougher. Nevertheless, Scott was apprehensive. These were his first restrictions and he had no idea of what they entailed. He thought it strange that upperclassmen were reluctant to talk about them.

At first, Scott was surprised and relieved at the casualness in which the restrictions were conducted. By late Saturday, however, he was tiring of the ordeal. And then, he felt the full brunt of the punishment. First he went numb. He could smell nothing, see nothing, and experienced a total loss of orientation. Then came the hot and cold flashes, the spiders under his skin, strange noises and hallucinations that seared his mind with their intensity. Finally, in a blinding flash of light, he passed out.

The GDO walked over to the large tank in which Scott, bristling with tubes and wires, was floating. He looked at the biostat printout. Scott was dead. Turning to the Morale Officer, he casually noted, "I guess sensory deprivation isn't for everyone."

"That's true," smirked the latter, "but then again we can't afford to waste the taxpayers' money."

GAMES TO PLAY WITH YOUR CALCULATOR!

by Stu 'Manchu' Pope

GAME 1: "TEXAS INSTRUMENTS STUD" (2 or more players)

All Players turn on their calculators and enter the number 888. Then watch your calculator until the numbers fade away. Player who "lasts" longest wins! (Note: Use battery packs only - no adaptors allowed.)

GAME 2: "HUMPTY DUMPTY" (2 or more players)

Take a calculator (preferably not your own) to the South Bridge. All players then set their calculators upright on the rail and push them off. Whosever calculator breaks into the most pieces wins! (Note: This game is most enjoyable after a Physics or Chemistry G.R.)

GAME 3: "CALCULATOR ROULETTE"

Buy six calculators. Charge five of them, leaving one "dead". Throw all six into a laundry bag and shake it up. The day of a big G.R. or Final, reach into the bag and choose a calculator, then take it to class. The fun begins when the test starts - that's when you turn on the calculator and see if it works! It's a game the whole wing can play!

GAME 4: "DIRTY TRICK"

Open up someone's (or everyone's!) calculator and take all of the inside components out. Fill the empty "shell" with an offensive material (e.g. ink, a dead magpie, or something from Mitchell Hall) and "put the calculator back together". When the victim attempts to use his calculator and discovers it doesn't work, he'll undoubtedly take it apart to see what's wrong. The laughs begin when the disgusting substance falls out in his hands! It's a calculator full of fun!!!
