Letter from the Editor

I'd like to use a little space here to remind everyone of a very special event coming up this summer: the 7th anniversary of the bicentennial milk cartons from which we drink every day. Intense concept, huh?

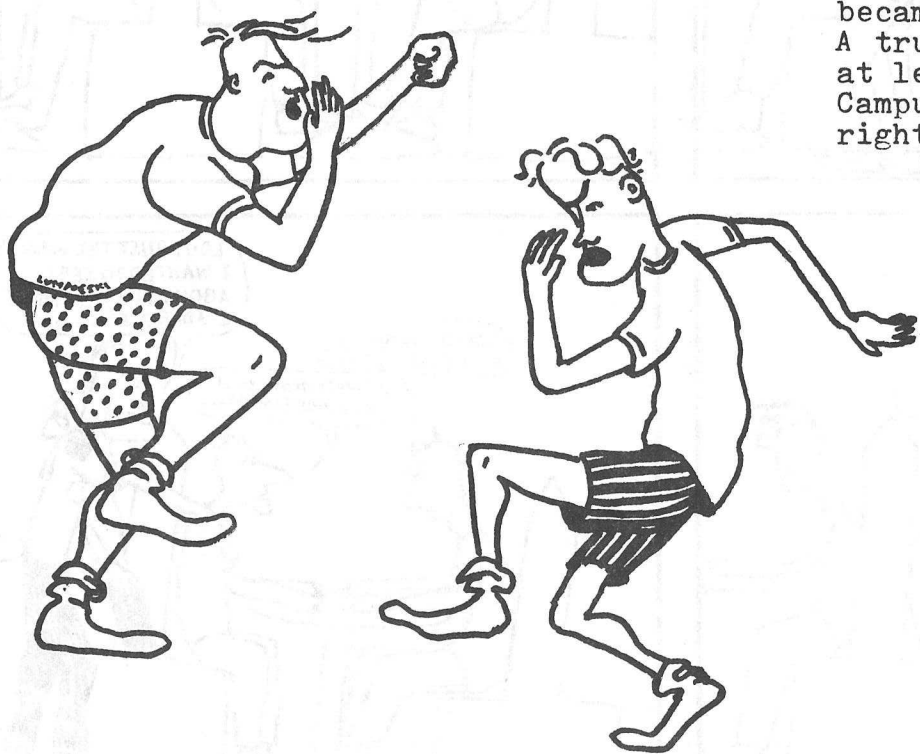

By the way, Al Govern says he wants to know if 'P.O.V.s' are American made cars. "Put that in the Dodo, Stu," he said. So I did. You happy now, Alex? Stu

CAMPUS RADICALS

Hey, man, time again for another cool patch from the wing-famous Biff & Lumpoe cool patch collection. This month we pay tribute to the old 39th Squadron patch, which was cool due not to its physical appearance, which was average at best, but to its name: "Campus Radicals." Like, me and Lumpoe sat around for a whole Ac Call and couldn't come up with a cooler name, which proves whoever did coin the phrase "Campus Radicals" was some kind of genius - obviously cast from the same mold as me and the Lumps. From what we understand, the rise and fall of the C.R.s took place during the seventies, and by the end of the decade they'd changed the squadron name to something in Latin and then went totally cartoonsville and became the "Jedi Knights." A truly tragic story, but at least the legend of the Campus Radicals lives on, right?

DODO FASHION NEWS

(DPI)-Famous fashion designer Taylor Shoppe recently announced his spring line of Cadet fashions to an eagerly awaiting wing at the quarterly fashion show in Sijan Hall. Along with the expected classics were a few surprises; according to Shoppe, Izod Lacoste™ will begin a line of sweaters for the Cadet Wing, some bearing small alligators on the breast, others having small props and wings, and still others with minitæ dodos. Embroidered comm's, dean's, and supt's list logos are planned for a series of polo and button-down shirts as well. The stylish new USAFA™ Running Suits, already immensely popular, will be seen even more this coming season, while classics like the T. Shoppe™ Overcoat and the Issue™ Parka will remain in vogue. Surprise item: Black, horn rimmed "Birth Control" eyeglasses are predicted to make a huge comeback this spring, according to Shoppe. Shoppe, whose Winters and Summers™ lines of fashion wear have remained in style for nearly three decades, is scheduled to present another show in Sijan Hall's second level in the near future.

Pierre and Fee model the new Air Force Lacoste™ sweaters, in both cardigan and pullover styles and in a variety of Air Force colors.

Manchu makes a Spring statement in his designer overcoat by T. Shoppe™. Collars up, sides down is the way the 'in' crowd is wearing them this season.

The already-classic USAFA™ running suit is a personal favorite of Pieter.

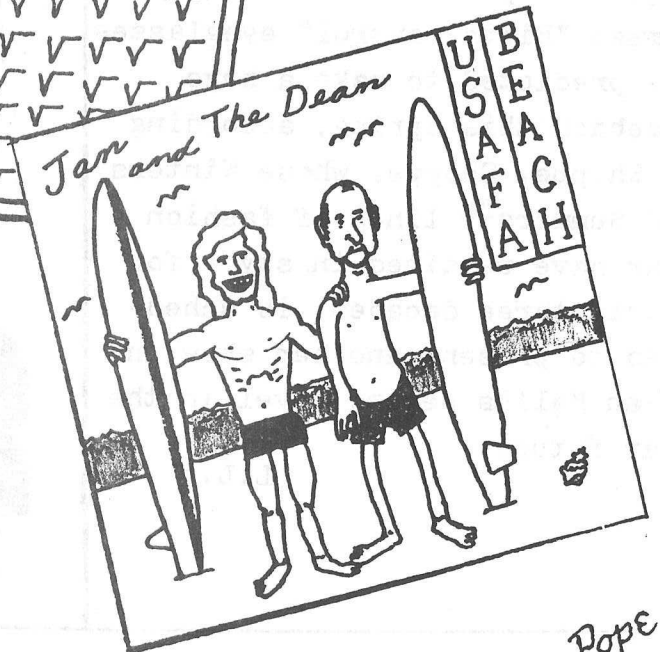

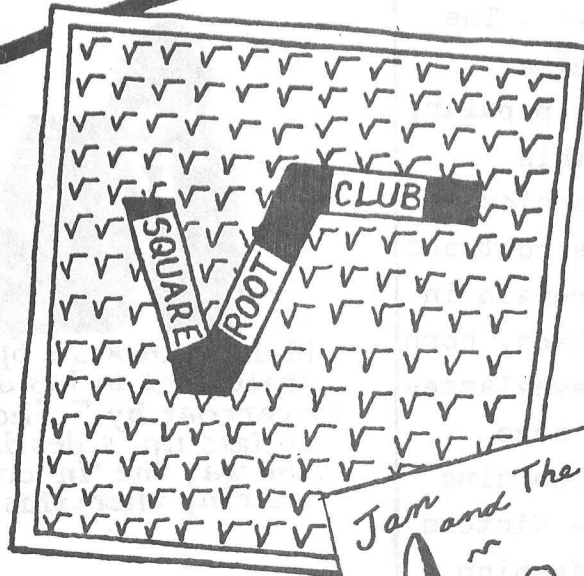

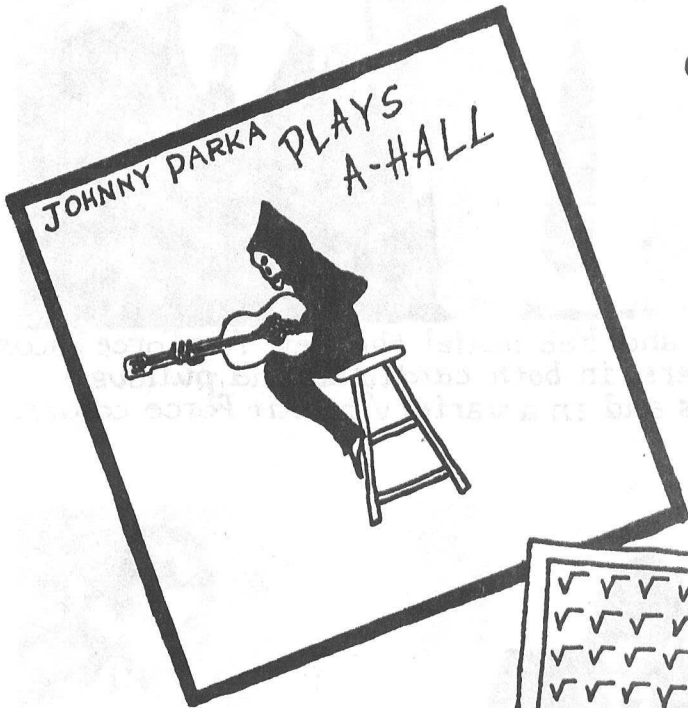

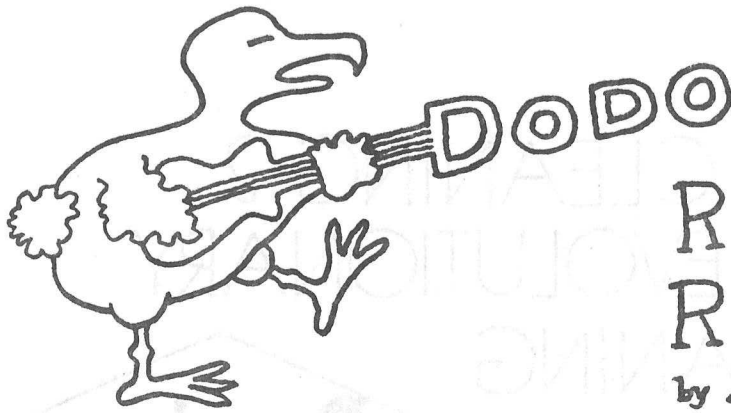

What Colorado Spring wardrobe could be complete without an "Issue™ Parka?"

'B.C. Glasses' are making a big comeback!

Record Review

JOHNNY PARKA PLAYS A-HALL by Johnny Parka

Johnny Parka rocks again, this time in an electrifying live solo performance at the Arnold Hall Theatre. Fears that his most recent public performance might be a failure without the aid of his band, The Accessories, proved to be unfounded, with Parka playing in fine form with the use of only an acoustic guitar and a harmonica. The concert recalled the days of JP's early years, when he drifted through the lower levels of Vandenburg Hall, playing small SARs and TV rooms. Academy Records captured his A-Hall concert on vinyl, and the album is certainly a worthwhile investment.

SQUARE ROOT CLUB by the Square Root Club

Mshumba Square and LeMar Root, formerly of I.P. Points and the Borderline Band, have broken away from that group to form the Square Root Club, a two-man combo with a soul-funk sound. The SRC have scored two hits off their premier album: "The Bogey Boogie" and "Do the Regulation (Get Down at Reg-Town Station)," and already have a large following at USAFA. I.P. Points' loss is the Square Root Club's gain, and time will tell if the SRC can hang on in the fiercely competitive world of music.

USAFA BEACH by Jan and The Dean

Well, the popular beach combo of Jan and The Dean are back with "USAFA Beach," their first album in several years. Jan Jones and Dean Orth are still able to catch the magic of the summer in their songs, as is evidenced by such top-quality tunes as "Beach Blanket-party" and "I Took My Books to the Beach (but They got Out of My Reach)." And if their recent concert tour of the major quads of USAFA Beach is any indication of their renewed popularity, Jan and The Dean should stay with us for at least a few more semesters.

Well, the T-Shop really botched up our parade uniforms this year!

A culturally enlightening footnote: the engravings on this page are the work of "Mexico's most illustrious graphic artist," José Guadalupe Posada (1852-1913.) Posada is best-known for his calaveras, or skeletons, which took on the roles of the Mexican people of his time. The popularity of the calaveras was to some extent due to their traditional associations with the Mexican Day of the Dead, or All Souls' Day. The similarity of this particular cut to my own preconceived idea of Johnny Parka is absolutely uncanny.

Johnny Parka here for the Dodo. Coming up next month is the incredible 30-page May issue - the most voluminous Dodo in recorded history. We're stepping out in style, man, with the long-awaited results of the Biff & Lumpoe look-alike contest, another Cool Patch, Joe Strack Comix, a Dodo Song, and the final appearance by yours truly. And some other stuff, too. So dig on it, you derelict dinks!
