THE GRADUATION

ISSUE

Ah, finally, after more than 1400 days of being Air Force Academy cadets, we will finally GRADUATE! I don't know about anyone else, but I am very anxious to leave this place permanently and not come back at all! Then again, I suppose some of ^{us} will come back (look at all those '76-'78 grads here)...some of us will become instructors, and the less smarter ones among us will become AOC's or PMS instructors. But that's around the year 2000 or so. Let's enjoy our lieutenant years first.

This is also the last edition of the DODO for this academic year. This one here is obviously longer than the previous ones (OK, maybe you won't laugh at some of the extra stuff that's in here). I enjoyed working with the DODO and all of my fellow staff members. We've been through rough times together during this past year, as you well know. But that's all in the past now and I'm sure we learned something good out of it. I'd also like to thank the higher-ups for not losing all of their hair and letting this publication continue to exist. Another group of people that deserves mention are those cadets who looked at the material prior to publication and tell us if it's funny, dumb, unsuitable, etc.

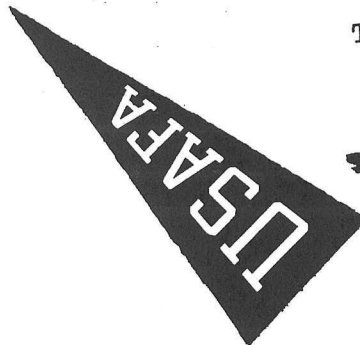

Ah, well. As far as I'm concerned, school is all done, finals are way over, '92 are acting like they're upperclass cadets already, '91 (most of them) are looking forward to Ops AF (unless they got Minot or Peterson), and '90 are all happy with their rings. I guess everyone is happy during the last few days of May!

I hope you enjoy this last issue of DODO and everyone has a great, safe summer. And to my classmates, I wish you all luck wherever you go or whatever you do in the Air Force. Take care!

WRIGHT-PATTERSON AFB (AFNS) - The Air Force Logistics Command has recently sent out requests for proposals for the Advanced Next Generation General Purpose Mechanical Pencil (ANGGPMP). It will replace the currently-used Skilcraft Mk. 20A "Hermes" Mechanical Pencil, which is scheduled to be phased out of the Air Force inventory by 1992. The ANGGPMP will integrate current technology and state-of-the-art design concepts that will make it much more effective than the Mk. 20A. Design specifications call for lead graphite that is refillable, as well as replaceable eraser modules. While the Mk. 20A did not have these features and had to be discarded after use, the ANGGPMP should prove to be cost-effective. Other specifications call for its operability in high-altitude, low-pressure environments as well as in -60°F Arctic to 120°F tropic conditions. It must withstand tensile stresses of 700psi and shear stresses of up to 300psi, or better, without overheating. Contenders for the ANGGPMP R&D contract and a future write-off competition are Skilcraft Aerospace, BiC Data Systems, Pentel Electronics, and Northrop. Prototype rollout data is slated to be in June ~~1990~~¹⁹⁹⁰ with IOC expected at Grand Forks AFB, ND, in December 1990. Tentative production plans call for 1 million models at $1.33 million. The U.S. Navy is considering a joint-service venture proposal by AFLC (the Navy is currently in the feasibility studies phase for its Advanced Mechanical Lead Writing Device [AMLWD]). Navy designs call for augmented seawater corrosion resistance.

LIEUTENANT
UNITED STATES AIR FORCE

Dear Comrade:

I am writing to you to discuss the latest in our series of programs to steal technology and other military secrets from the West, namely Operation Rubble.

As you know, we have developed our latest fighters and tanks by stealing these militarily vital technologies from the Americans and their Allies. Also, we have instituted many observation programs to monitor the Western military establishment, such as our generous offer to construct the listening device ladden embassy in our Motherland's capital. What our newest program, Operation Rubble, does is combine these two highly successful programs into one.

The first step, of course, was to infiltrate the American construction industry. Through years of preperation, we managed to assemble a cadre of construction workers throughout the industry who had no traceable ties to us.

The second step was to convince the administration at a certain mid-west military academy that major reconstruction of the entire facility was in order. This step, as you are well aware of, was exceptionally easy.

Finally, the third, and most brilliant step. We steal this certain mid-west military academy piece by piece and bring to the Motherland so that we, too, may produce the best damn officers in the world! And the master stroke: we replace each stolen bit with a listening device so that we may conitnue to swipe secrets from the West on how they produce their most potent weapon (their leaders) so that we will be able to continue to make our own updated copies! A brilliant plan, no?

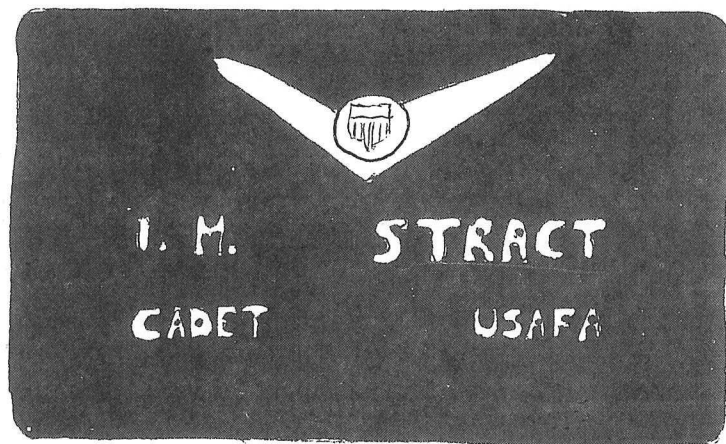

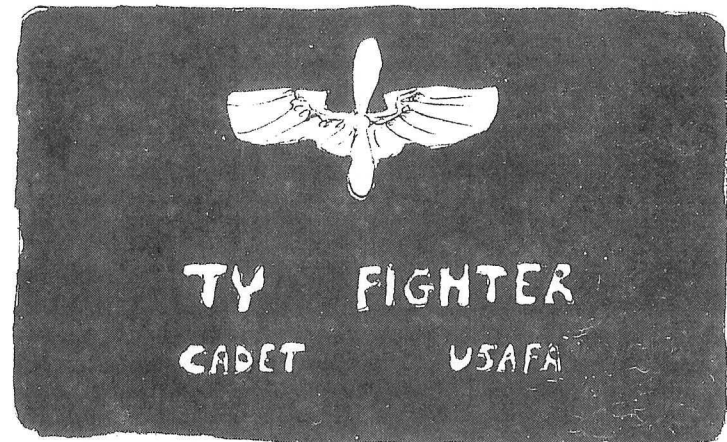

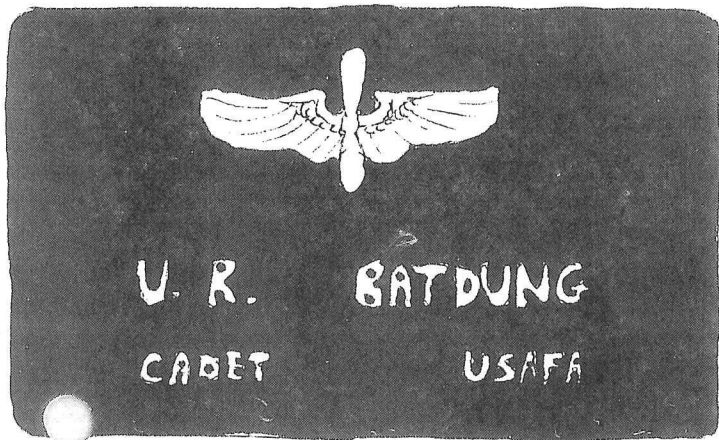

Long live Glasnost!

Admiral Scuttles Naval Academy's 'Playmid'

Midshipmen Ordered to Destroy 5,000 Copies of 'Inappropriate' Satire Magazine

By Molly Moore
Washington Post Staff Writer

ANNAPOLIS, April 12—The superintendent of the U.S. Naval Academy has barred distribution of a satirical student magazine featuring a centerfold photograph of a woman midshipman lounging in a swimsuit, because the publication could be offensive to some students, academy officials said today.

The 5,000 copies of the April edition of the student magazine, which was designed as a parody of Playboy, were ordered destroyed by the superintendent, Rear Adm. Virgil L. Hill.

Although the magazine, The Log, contained no nude photographs or sexually explicit articles, Hill ordered the ban because he "felt the concept of the magazine was inappropriate," said Cmdr. Stephen Becker, a Naval Academy spokesman.

The order to ban the publication comes amid growing Navy concern over the sensitivities of women midshipmen, who make up 10 percent of the brigade of midshipmen at the Naval Academy.

The student editors and the faculty adviser of the magazine have been "counseled" as a result of the publication, but have not been given formal reprimands or punishment, Becker said.

Students assembled for lunch today in the academy's massive dining hall were strongly urged to return 420 copies of the magazine that were unaccounted for after the ban on distribution was announced.

Some midshipmen said they believed Hill's decision was a form of censorship.

"We're here training to uphold democratic principles, yet we aren't even allowed to see the magazine before this decision is made," said one male midshipman.

But other midshipmen and faculty members, who have complained previously about biting satire or smaller pictures of scantily clad women published frequently in the magazine, supported the decision.

Some students and faculty members said that the magazine, which contains sharp academy-oriented humor, has drawn fire from some blacks and women for past satires, cartoons and photographs.

Becker said editors recently

MAGAZINE...Pg. 16

apologized for a photograph of a black midshipman carrying a stereo record player out of a room in Bancroft Hall, in connection with recent reports of thefts in the midshipmen's living quarters.

The April edition, dubbed "Playmid," contained a drawing of a woman in a military camouflage bikini on the cover and a photograph of a woman midshipman wearing a "conservative" one-piece bathing suit in the centerfold, Becker said. It also included photographs of bare-chested male pin-ups, he said.

The male models were not midshipmen, Becker said.

The articles in Playmid included examples of the satire poking fun at the strict discipline and academy life styles found in most editions of the magazine, Becker said.

The magazine also included a regular feature called "Campus Cuties," a collection of photographs of girlfriends and boyfriends of midshipmen.

One recent edition contained several suggestive photos in the "Campus Cuties" section, including one woman in a bikini bathing suit leaning over a rumpled bed with the caption, "Open invitation" under the photo.

The "Campus Cuties" section also included photographs of men, including one recently standing in a shower with a towel draped over his outstretched arms.

The cartoon bore the caption, "Drop...Towel."

Becker said midshipmen give the magazine the photographs of their boyfriends or girlfriends for use in the section.

While much of the magazine's operation is funded by subscription fees, the academy also provides funds for the sanctioned extracurricular activity.

Articles, cartoons and stories are contributed by midshipmen.

SAMI EASTBRICK is a syndicated DODO columnist, as well as 1963 graduate and current commandant of a major midwestern military academy. Sami gives answers to questions involving information and advice and can be contacted by sending your requests to SAMI, C/O The Dodo, Cadet Wing Media.

For all of you uninformed readers out there, this is SAMI's last appearance in The Dodo on account of SAMI's having received a new assignment for next year. So relax in the knowledge that this is the final analysis from our dear friend.

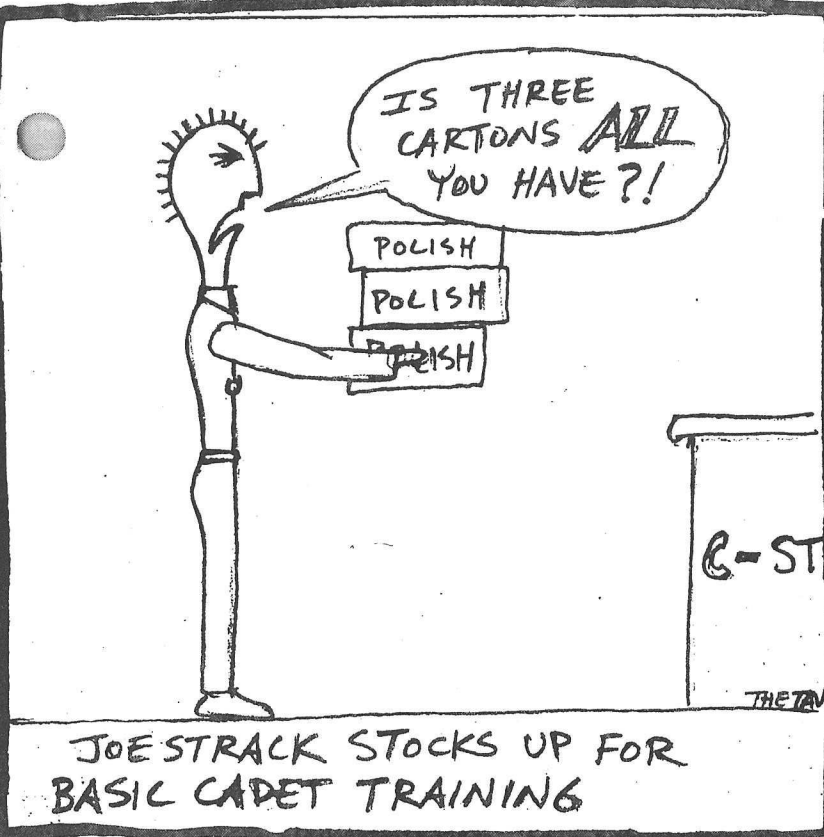

Dear Sami,
I am a senior at a major midwestern academy and I'm worried that when I graduate and become a brand-spanking-new first lieutenant that I won't know my  from a hot rock! I mean, when those caps go in the air, there's no turning back, is there? No AOC to watch you grow and give you Forms-10, no subordinates to push around. . . it's back down to the bottom of the ladder, huh? All of my instructors keep telling me about all the hard times they had and how first lieutenants never even have enough money to pay attention. What did you do when YOU had butterbars? Anticipating your reply on the NET, C1C WITHOUTACLUUE.

DEAR YES YOU REALLY AREN'T GOING TO BE WORTH ANYTHING TO ANYONE WHEN YOUR ASSIGNMENT STARTS: LET ME START BY SAYING THAT BACK IN '63, THINGS WERE A LOT TOUGHER. WE DIDN'T EVEN HAVE GRADUATION BACK THEN. WE JUST SIGNED UP FOR APPOINTMENTS WITH

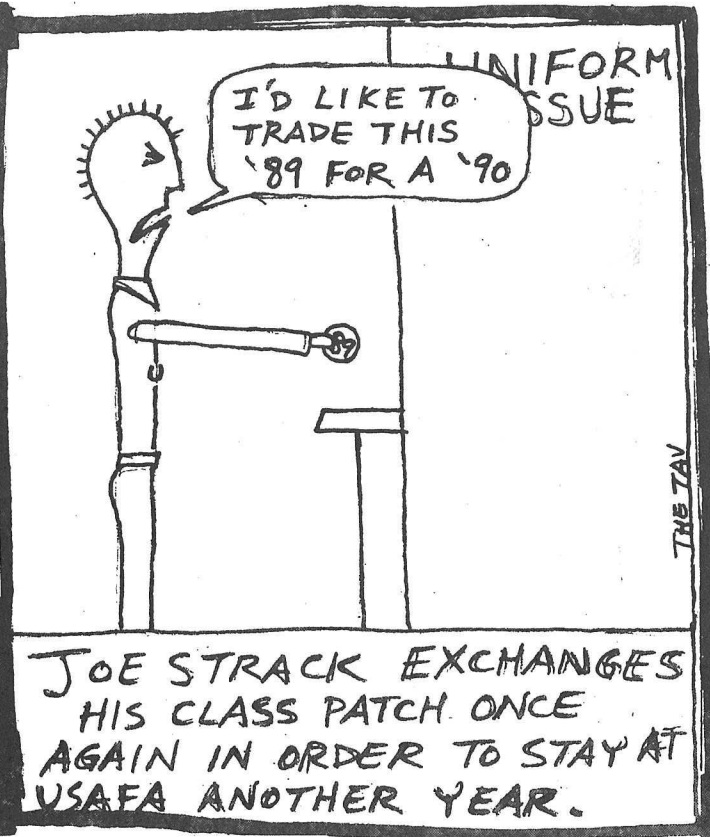

ANOTHER
JOE STRACK COMIX:

THE SUPERINTENDENT FOR 2 MINUTES SOMETIME AFTER FINALS WEEK AND HE WOULD HAND US A SCRAP PIECE OF PAPER SAYING THAT WE'D BEEN AT THE ACADEMY FOR FOUR YEARS AND THAT IT WAS SUPPOSED TO MEAN SOMETHING. THEN HE WOULD SAY "DISMISSED SOLDIER", SALUTE SHARPLY, AND YELL OUT "NEXT !!!" AS WE TRUDGED OFF TO OUR NEW ASSIGNMENTS. IN FACT, WHEN WE LEFT, WE WEREN'T EVEN 2nd LIEUTENANTS. NO, INDEED, WE HAD THE RANK OF 3rd LIEUTENANT. WHY HAVEN'T YOU EVER HEARD OF SUCH A RANK? WELL, THAT JUST GOES TO SHOW YOU HOW WORTHLESS WE WERE. AND AS FAR AS SALARY IS CONCERNED, DON'T EVEN BEGIN TO THINK THAT YOU MAKE LESS THAN WE DID. AT LEAST YOU'LL GET TO FEED YOUR FAMILY DOG FOOD. YEAH, THINGS WERE DEFINITELY TOUGHER BACK THEN. BUT NOW I'M SOMEBODY IMPORTANT. OH, YES, THAT REMINDS ME ABOUT YOUR QUESTION. WELL THE ANSWER IS NO, YOU WON'T HAVE A CLUE IN THE WORLD, AND YES YOU'LL BE BACK AT THE BOTTOM, JUST AS YOU WERE 4 YEARS AGO AS A WAD. SO INSTEAD OF WORRYING ABOUT IT, WHY DON'T YOU JUST SIT DOWN, TAKE A PAMPRIN, AND START SHINING YOUR SHOES, LIEUTENANT?

Mr. John Hinckley
State Mental Hospital
Baltimore, Maryland 23341

Dear Mr. Hinckley:

As I ponder the accomplishments and events of the past eight years spent as President, I have occasion to reflect upon the attempt you made upon my life so long ago. As a troubled young man, you no doubt were driven to this, and not responsible for your actions.

I have always considered myself to be a compassionate and forgiving person; one who does not "hold a grudge" in my heart. To error is human; to forgive divine. In my own mind, I've "walked a mile in your moccasins," and thought about the remorse you have previously told me of. Now, as Chief Executive of this great nation, I wish to forgive you for your transgressions.

Therefore, as allowed by the Constitution of the United States of America, I do hereby give you full and absolute pardon, now and forever for the attempt you made to kill me, and order your immediate and unconditional release from the facility in which you have been detained.

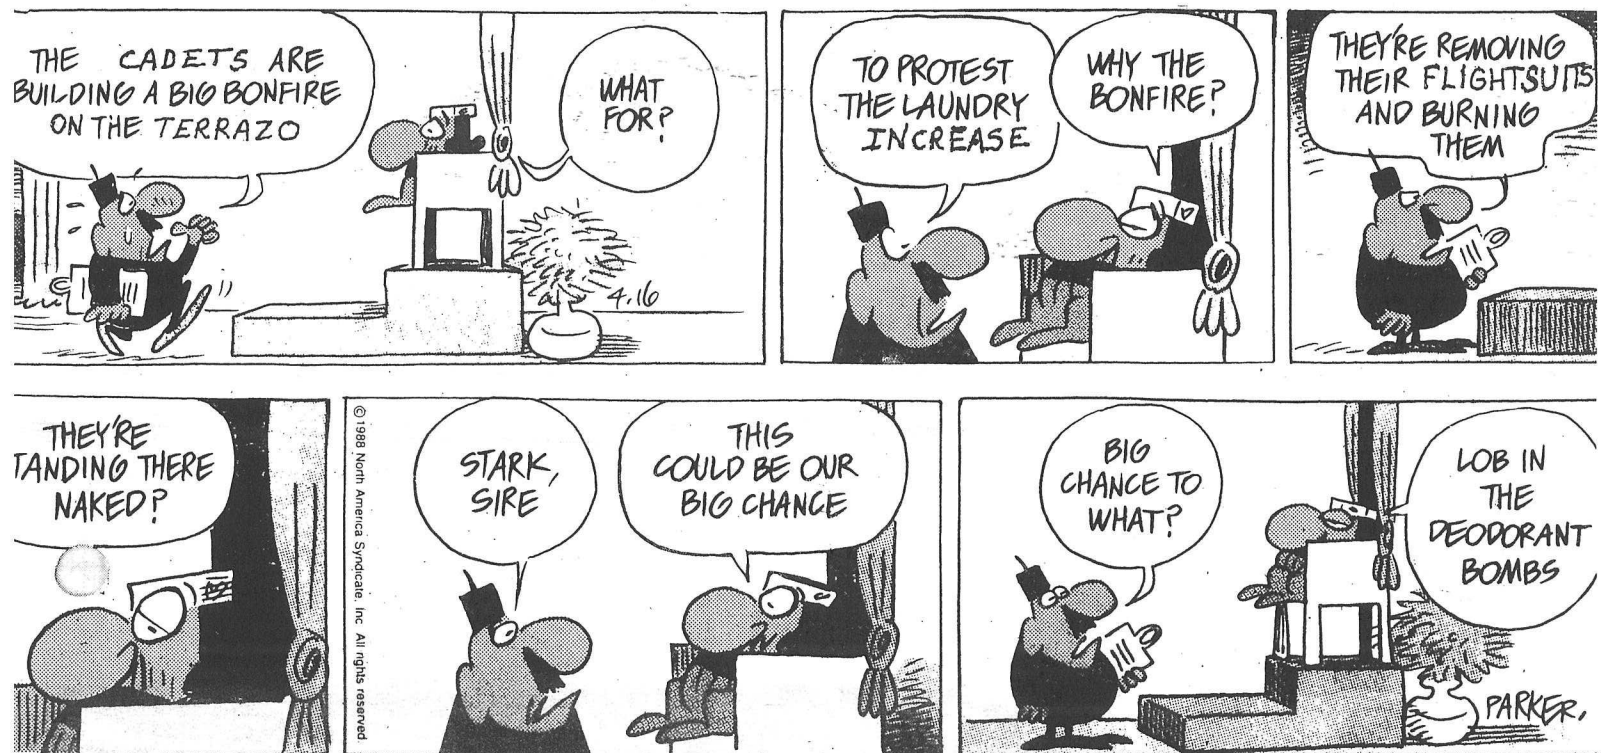

May God bless you. By the way, did you know that Michael Dukakis is for Jody Foster?
