Then idiots run USAFA.

CADET ON THE STREET

When going on vacation, what do most people look forward to doing? The numerous and various demographics which are represented at USAFA provide the Cadet Wing with some pretty interesting ideas. Therefore Cadet On The Street is focusing on the following question:

What are you looking forward to doing the most during the Winter Break?

I will definitely hit the rack, get a few hours of sleep, then pull an all-nighter partying with my friends.

DODO
TAILS

Oh, no! Not another story about Mitchell Hall! But, yes, it is. I'm sorry, but it's in my nature to be cynical. Let me tell you from experience, it's far easier to find fault than it is to find solutions.

Mitch's latest attempt at human regulations, excuse me, relations, is a comment/suggestion form for cadets to fill out. I thought that's what the Form O-96 was for, but then it would be called hazing, right? Anyway, it requests that we take a bit of our time to comment on the service, the food, etc. Well it just so happens that I have five minutes before every meal to do so. After Cadet Monotone tells us to take our seats (where should we take them?) it takes our waiter at least until twenty-five till the hour to bring us the food. Notice I said waiter, not waiters. For our row, we have a waiter to serve twenty tables of ten cadets and/or annoying AOC's. That's 200 people! 200! No wonder they're called waiters.

But it's not his fault. He does his best to get the food out as quickly as possible, but for one person, the job is just too much. Every other row has two waitpersons, and when they get done, sometimes, but not always, one comes over to help our poor waiter finish the job. Of course, I wouldn't know how to solve this problem. Like I said, I'm only here to complain about it.

And speaking of waiting, I occupied my waiting time in the clinic by counting how many lines I had to stand in before I could go back to bed. First, there's the Honor Code Test line to get my records ("You must have YOUR ID to get your medical records").

Then you wait for your name to be called for the 20 Questions game: "What brings you in today? Can you take your coat off? Can you roll up your sleeve? Are you in a flying program? Are you an intercollegiate? Are you allergic to medication? How long have you felt this way? What's your shoe size? When was the last time you called your parents? Don't you know they miss you? If a train leaves New York at 7pm and another from L.A. at 8pm, both traveling at an average speed of 65mph, what state will they collide in and what is its capital?"

Next you wait for Airman Pleasantness to tell you which station to go warm the couch beside. Then you have to wait there for the doctor to play 20 Questions again while he or she probes you with a tongue depressor and proceeds to tell you what you already knew: "You're sick."

After you receive your (mis)treatment from the Doc, you still have to wait in line for the drugs. That's OK, though, because you're home free after that. If it's not ACQ yet, you still have time to take advantage of your bedrest and suck down some of that "May cause drowsiness" cough medicine (Freshmen, ask an upperclassmen to help you take the cap off).

I'll tell you what works better than any of the medicine they gave me. Complaining about it sure took a load off my chest. I feel better already.
