THE NEW CW **

(IT REALLY AIN'T THAT NEW)

Tell me something I don't @#%&* know ALREADY !!?

Hey, man. where ya been Haydn?

* THIS MONTH'S TYPICAL CW RESPONSE TO CADET WHINING

 CADET WING, YOU BOZOS

Well, here it is already. Maybe some of you haven't even seen the first one. If not, go grab a fourthclassman and train them for hours and hours about not coming down to the Wing Media offices (which are now located right next to the Barber Shop in Vandenberg Hall) and picking up your squadron's distribution. That way, we'll have lots of great big training violations, the Dean will get really torqued off about training near Academic Call to Quarters, Congressional investigations will be mounted, and the DODO will finally have lots and lots of nice, juicy material to release to the unsuspecting public. Then the presses will be shut down, graduates won't receive their issues that they subscribed to, the AF in general will degenerate into a rag-tag force, and Saddam Hussein will have an easy time mopping up the last of our F-15s in Saudi Arabia.

See how serious the situation is, folks?! So for those of you who are now reading their friends DODO because their squadron hasn't picked up their copies - GO GET THEM RIGHT NOW. Besides, if you don't like reading the DODO, it always makes a nice obscure Christmas gift, and it wraps fish better than you've ever seen.

In case this happens to be the first thing you ever look at in the DODO (I can't understand that at all) then you're in for a surprize. This is the most boring thing you will read in the whole issue. Unless of course you're the COMM, and then there probably isn't much in your day that's funnier than this rag anyway. We have Iraqi jokes, dry cleaning jokes, as well as the regular stuff that has made the DODO a world-renowned publication (yea, right, they say). So once again, sit back, enjoy, and keep the Forms-10 and barf bags handy.

TAV

Congratulations on your morning bugler. That move was about as good as bringing dry cleaning back.

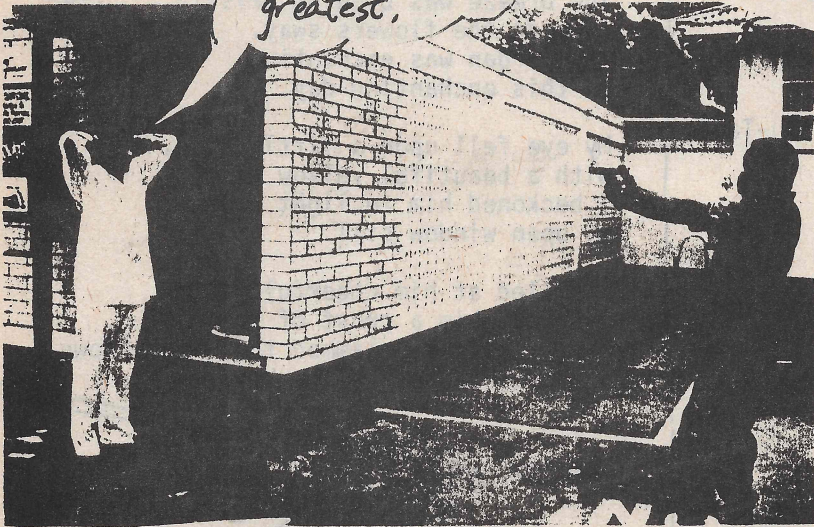

NOW you've done it, Saddam! Not only are we starving, embargoed, and with troops on our border, but now the Americans have taken our DODOS away!! What ever will we do???

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Here it is again! This time, we sent out forms to all of the suckers who paid us for the DODO last time, and when the money started rolling in again, we received a few words in reply as well...

Dear DODO,

Enclosed are some possible ideas should you ever run out of humor. As the wife of a "grad", I too enjoy the DODO. However, my husband often becomes embarrassed when asked to explain such things as "Virgin Peanut Butter."

Keep up the good work!

Peggy L. Lamy

Dear DODO,

Keep up the good work, guys. We LOVE it.

"Sean" '71

Dear DODO Staff,

OK, you bloodsuckers, here is my $20.00 check to renew my subscription to the DODO. I'm not sure why I decided to renew - maybe it's because I'm stationed at an Army MACOM Hq and anything Air Force we can get around here keeps us from going crazy!

Thanks for keeping the mag in print. It's nice to know that institutional inertia is alive and well at USAFA.

Lt Col David Prahler

Dear DODO,

Enclosed you'll find a check for the Humorous magazine. We'll be waiting patiently for the return of the DODO to our household.

M.A. Coatsworth

(you mean you let your kids read this stuff?)-Tav

Dear DODO,

O.K., I'll buy it.

John P. McDonnell

(There's one born every minute, as they say -Tav)

Dear DODO Dudes,

Enclosed is my $20.00 (what a ripoff, but the best ripoff around!) to continue my subscription to the DODO. My brother, Major Gary Frith, is one of your AOC's (CS-39). If you guys can find humor while he's there the place must be O.K. I'm a student again as I'm just starting ACSC here at Maxwell AFB. Believe me, it's like being a smack-wad (can you still call them that?) again without the shower formations. I do enjoy reading your rag and I pass it about to all the "tight wads" who aren't willing or to stupid to get their own subscription (or maybe they're smarter and richer than me). Anyway, who cares.....keep up the good work.

Now your first major test is to see if you can update my new address. I'm sure you can probably do it from your dorm room computer.....that's if the T.V. isn't too loud in your room, the microwave doesn't cause any static electricity, or the rugs and throw bed covers aren't dirty with popcorn ...wah....wah...wah...!

Marc "Mongo" Frith

The sun was shining brightly
and I could hardly wait
to peer outside my window
and gaze at my estate

The breeze was blowing briskly,
it made the flowers sway.
The garden was enchanting
on this enchanting day.

My eye fell upon a little bird,
with a beautiful yellow bill.
I beckoned him to light upon my open window sill.

I smiled at him cheerfully
and gave him a crust of bread.
Then I quickly slammed the window down and crushed his little head.

PILOT'S PSALM

(by Chaplain E. R. Jones)

The Lord is my pilot; I shall not crash. He maketh me fly in clear skies; he leadeth me down to smooth landings, he keepeth my chart. He guideth me through the pathless ways of the skies for His Name's sake. . . . Yea, though I fly through the storms and tempests of life, I shall dread no danger; for thou are near me; Thy love and Thy care; they protect me . . . Thou preparast an airport before me in the homeland of eternity; Thou emblazonest the skies with thy beauty; my plane flies gracefully. Surely sunlight and starlight shall favor me on the flight I take, and I will abide in the presence of my God forever.

Alright, alright. I'm beginning to feel really guilty about not giving you guys (and girls) a real TOP TEN last issue, so even though this second one has come out so fast, I'll go ahead and give out TWO, COUNT 'EM, TWO lists for now. So please, no more whining. Or at least no more burning my effigy. And now:

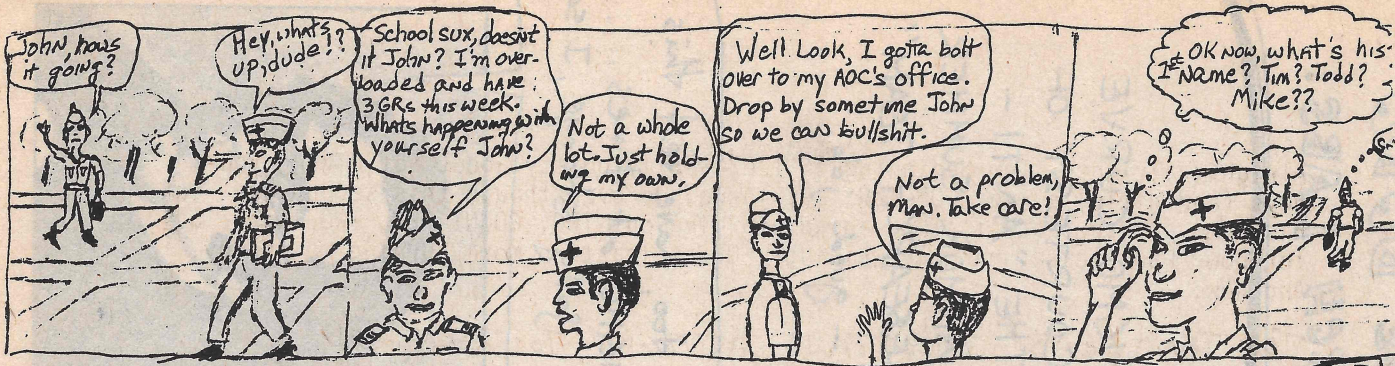

TOP TEN "LEAST IMPORTANT ACTIONS TO TAKE" ON PRESIDENT BUSH'S IRAQ CRISIS AGENDA

- #10 - Placing Exxon ship captains in charge of tankers in the Gulf.
- #9 - Telling Gorbachev where to shove it.
- #8 - Broadcasting the "Fister DeBerry Show" over Armed Forces Radio to build morale.
- #7 - Flying Salman Rushdie to Saudi Arabia.
- #6 - Placing CIC Eric Rundquist in command of the 101st Airborne.
- #5 - Telling Israel to do WHATEVER THEY WISH to Jordan.
- #4 - Ensuring that every soldier drinks at least 6 canteens/day.
- #3 - Basing all of our B-1 bombers in Turkey, on the Soviet border.
- #2 -
- #1 = Putting together a "New Kids on the Block" USO show tour.

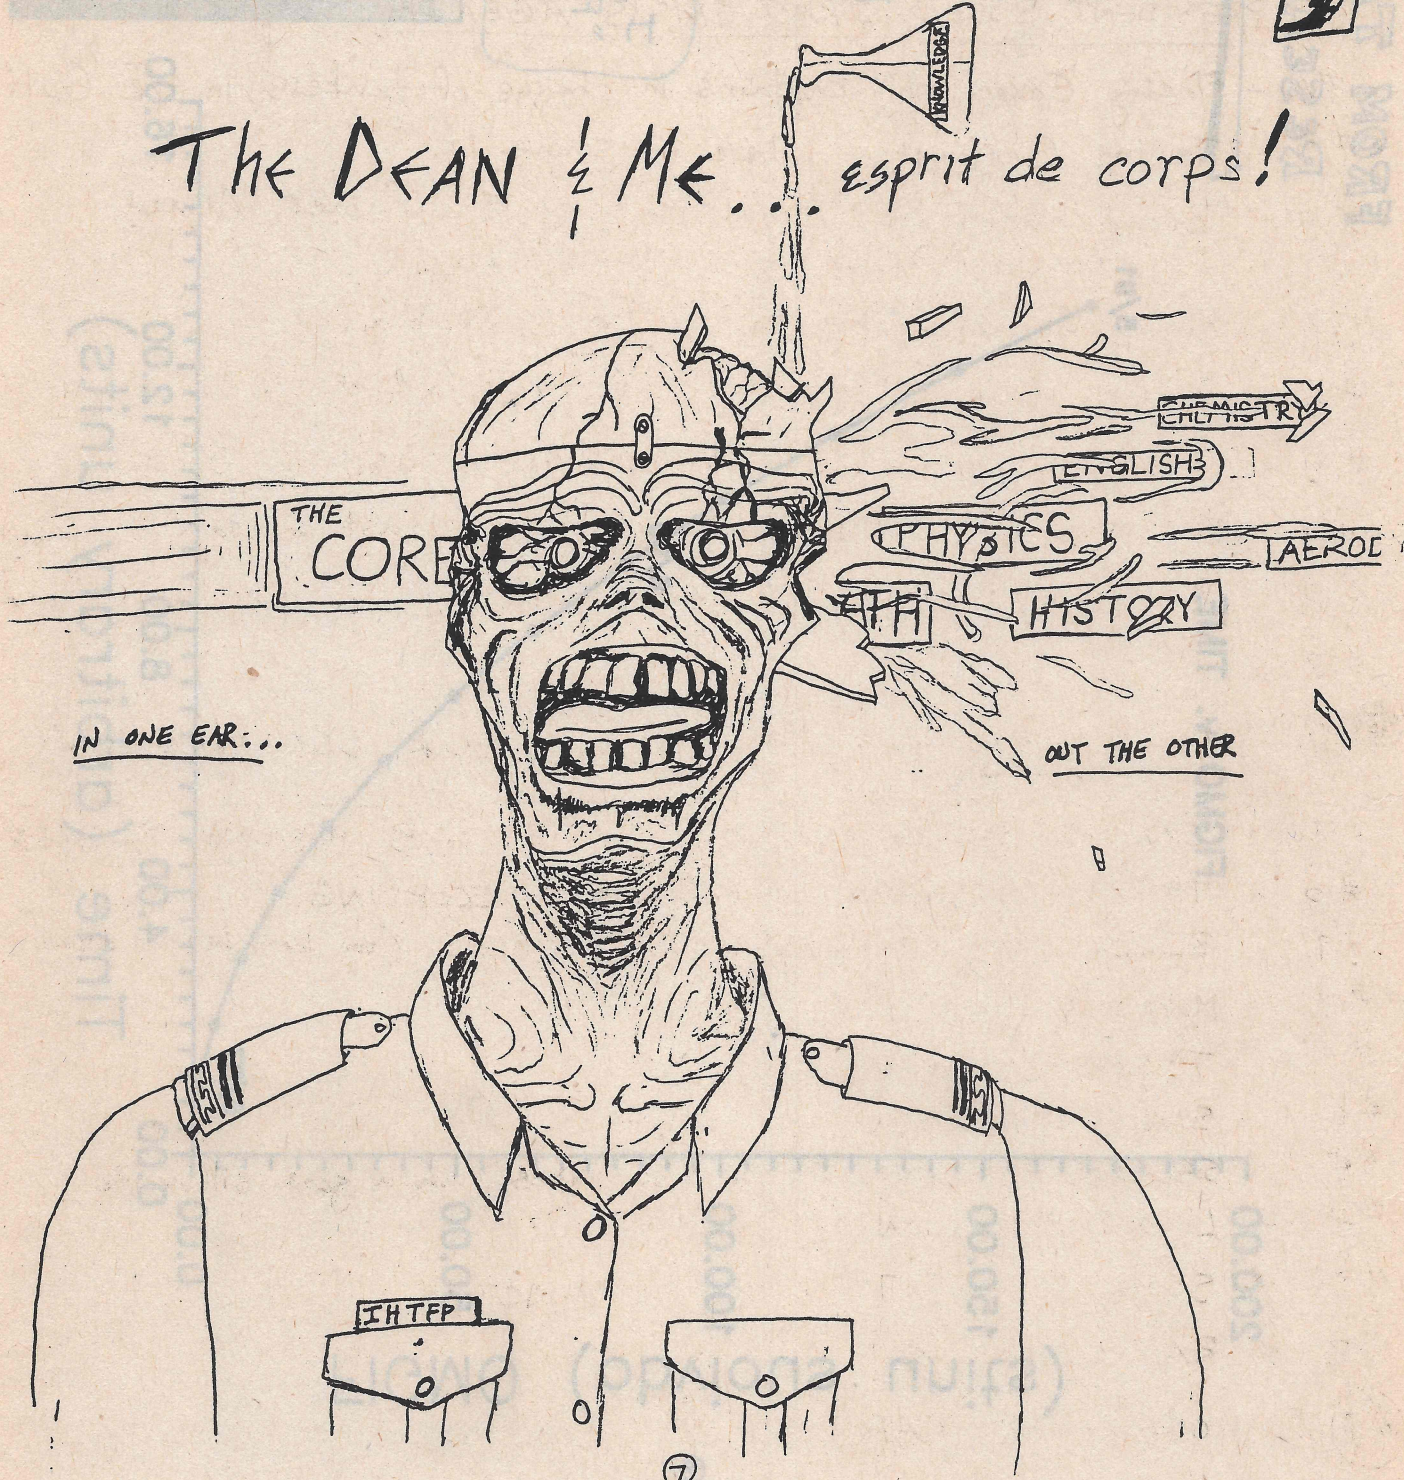

TOP TEN ALTERNATIVES TO THE D & B MORNING BUGLER

- #10 - THE OL' RELIABLE: COMMAND POST RECORDING.
- #9 - BUGLER FROM THE BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG (too bad he's so dead).
- #8 - MORNING TUBA PLAYER.
- #7 - "TREMENDOUS" MENDEZ.
- #6 - SNUFFALLUPUGUS.
- #5 - SADDAM HUSSEIN (The sunrise makes such a good silhouette).
- #4 - LISA SIMPSON ON THE SAX.
- #3 - SOMEONE WITH THE TIME TO PRACTICE.
- #2 - RAY CHARLES.
- #1 = ROSEANNE BARR.

"I think we should've invaded Iraq last week!"
-Mrs. George Meuse, Lake of the Ozarks

"It's scary. Mixed emotions about why we're there."

"[Our government's] not going to let it sit. Those [Iraqi] leaders won't be here by the end of next year."

"When the shooting starts, we'll have to go in there full force."

"The whole thing shouldn't have happened."

From five 'Nam vets, learning to be soccer referees at the Olympic Training Center:

"We have a very bad situation, basically between a rock and a hard place. The US, USSR, and UN are all at odds about what to do."

- Retired AF pilot, flew the first B-52 mission into Vietnam, from Arizona

"Again, between a rock and a hard place. We really don't understand the Middle East thought process. You can fight one man, but it is harder when you are fighting brothers." - Ohio

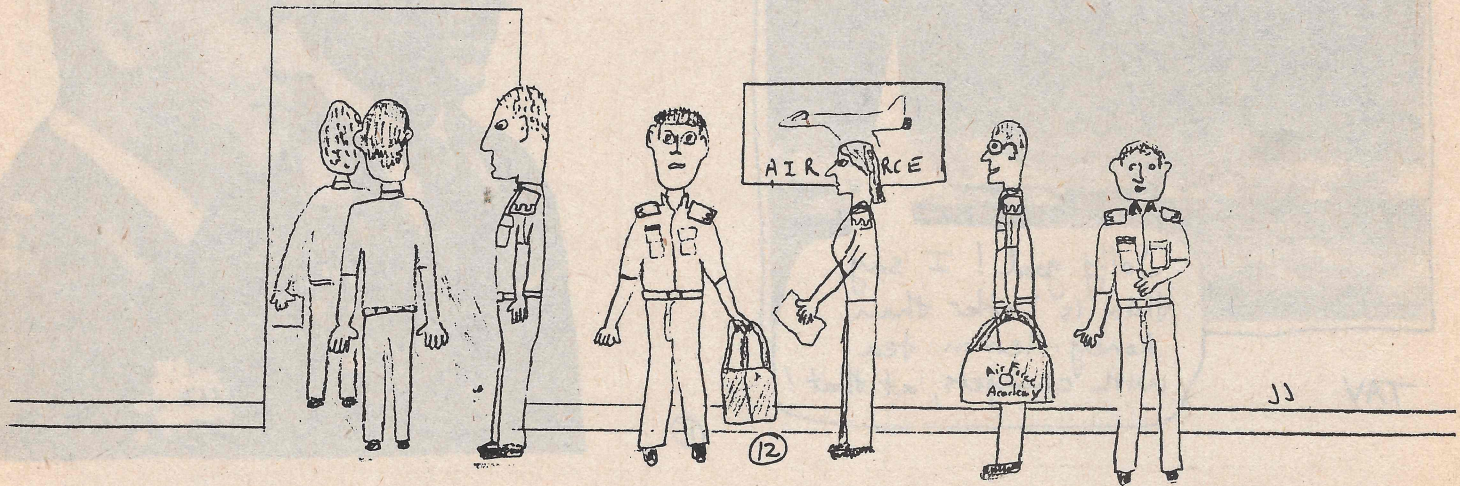

"We're in a very difficult situation. The only thing the President can do is act firmly but with enough care to prevent precipitation, with the help of God."
- Former POW in Cuba from the Bay of Pigs invasion; fought commies in Guatemala

"The President has done everything necessary. Let's just hope this doesn't drag on forever. I'm not against us having to invade." - Idaho

"I'm confident that the situation will come to an understanding. This world needs some brotherhood." - Missouri

Is There Time to Study?

by Capt David R. Chaffee

I should perhaps call this article "But Sir, There are not Enough Hours in the Day to Study 100 Minutes Outside of Class for Every 50 Minutes in Class." How many of us have heard that before? The response to this cadet dilemma follows. This I gotta hear.

The purpose of this synopsis is two-fold. First, for the new instructor, it is to serve as a guide to some cadet time constraints outside of academics. Second, and most important, it should reassure all instructors that it is most certainly reasonable to require, indeed to demand, a significant effort from cadets enrolled in core courses. The two-for-one rule is intended to be a guideline to cadets to help them orchestrate their study schedule and develop a conscientious priority plan. For most core courses, I dare say that two-for-one is a slight (and I mean slight) excess. But for the sake of argument, let's consider the two for one a hard and fast necessity.

Scenario A is what I call the "Instructor's Dream." In this example, we see a Firstie carrying seven course units, PMS, PE, and period M5 military training (PMT). Let's assume that two periods are totally and always tied up in PE. Also, M5 is always scheduled for training and is, therefore, never free. This Firstie is so into intramurals that on intramural days (two days each week), he/she remains on the fields all afternoon. This is getting ridiculous.

Cadet A's schedule equates to three free class periods each lesson for 2.5 lessons each week. On off-intramural days, there are (1600 through 2000 minus one hour for dinner) six hours available every week. And, of course, Academic Call to Quarters (ACQ) allows $3 \times 5 = 15$ available study hours weekly. Notice that Cadet A never takes late lights (an additional hour available each night if needed). Now remember, we "require" 100 minutes of outside study for every 50 minutes of class. And Cadet A studies to these standards religiously. However, he/she never studies for PE or PMT.

Cadet A must spend 4.83 hours each weekend (1600 Friday to 2000 Sunday) to accomplish our two-for-one study requirement.

This time, let's be a little more realistic. Scenario B (Cadet B) has the same schedule as Cadet A. However, Cadet B uses three of his/her 7.5 hours of free periods for the Cadet Store, Mail Room, laundry prep, etc., leaving 4.5

you forgot walking all over this place.

available day time hours. Every off-intramural day he/she goes to the gym and works out for two hours leaving only two hours/week of off-intramural day available time. And, to be realistic, Cadet B takes two hours of late lights each week. ← don't you mean "per night" ?!

Cadet B must spend 9.83 hours each weekend to accomplish a two-for-one study requirement.

Foul, foul!! Is that what I hear? Of course, even Scenario B is not really realistic. Almost all cadets have jobs in their squadrons, the average of which (for a conscientious cadet) requires probably two hours each day. Allowing for this effort, Cadet B must spend 19.83 hours every weekend to study at two-for-one.

When cadets claim "impossible" to the two for one guidance, it is this 19.83 weekend hours to which they refer. And I agree. It is unreasonable to consistently ask for five 17-hour workdays followed by a 20-hour work weekend. Fortunately for cadets, the unreasonable is not necessary.

Recall several key assumptions. First, PE only meets during half of the semester. That means, spread over the semester, there are 2.19 more hours per week available. Also, M5 normally allows approximately one free hour per week (depending on the squadron). During intramural days, another hour is normally available if proper time management is used. That's two more hours per week. And let's be realistic; if Cadet B is the type who really needs the two-for-one study ratio, then maybe he/she should reconsider the four hours per week individual workout time. After all, PE and intramurals every other day should normally be sufficient to maintain a good bill of health. At least, 1.0 to 1.5 hours/week can be recovered here. Considering these inputs (6.69 more available hours), conscientious Cadet B must now spend 13.14 hours on the weekend to accommodate two-for-one. It is "possible."

oh, man, whatever like get real

Cadets equate to full time college students working their way through school. Civilians in this category easily spend six very full days studying and working each week. We should expect no less. I don't believe this.

I hope that this brief synopsis helps you to identify cadet time constraints. Those who conscientiously strive to become the best officers possible are very busy people. They are also the ones who agree that weekend study time is required. For those who think that the two-for-one guidance is impossible, let's educate them!
