WELCOME TO MARCH!
(BELATEDLY)

HAVE FUN ~~OVER~~ READY FOR SPRING BREAK?

UNCLE LUIGI, I
STILL CAN'T BELIEVE
THE OFFICERS HAVEN'T FIGURED OUT OUR
USAFA DRY-CLEANING
SCAM !! IT'S INCREDIBLE!

WELL, IT'S THE CADETS WE HAVE TO WATCH OUT FOR.

Well, here it is, the March issue. I guess it's been a while since the last, but then again that's only compared to what you're used to. This issue is definitely hot. If there isn't anything in here that you find amazingly true about AOCs, then there must have been some heavy censorship going around. But you won't notice, probably, because I have so much good stuff that's been given to me recently by many people out there that I'll just replace the censored pages.

Listen to me, talking as if I'm expecting this to happen. Well, that really isn't true. While I'm thinking about it, thanks to all those of you who went to Navy and came back with good feedback for me about the LOG (their humor mag). I'd always felt like their publication was always really professional and all, but I didn't think too much about how their humor and cartoons were really bad. I mean, it's pretty obvious, isn't it? And plus all those stupid editorials and pieces of prose. Slow, if you ask me. So I'm glad you appreciate coming back to read the DODO. Of course, you didn't have much choice on coming back, did you? Here at the DODO we aim to please. Or at least punch. To all the seniors: Why aren't y'all interested in helping me by sending in ballots for the senior issue? I have several already (thanks to those who sent them in already), but there aren't enough to make a good decision about who wins what. And by the way, I might take out some of the categories to avoid slandering someone's name, dig?

Enjoy. Spring break, that is.

Guess it didn't happen! Sorry, we had one less week this month.

TEN PRETTY GOOD RULES

- 1) Never argue with an idiot; people watching may not be able to know the difference!
- 2) Never wrestle with a pig; you both get dirty and the pig likes it!
- 3) Observe everything; admire nothing!
- 4) It's easier to obtain forgiveness than it is permission!
- 5) Never resist the opportunity to keep you mouth shut!
- 6) Don't ask the question if you can't live with the answer!
- 7) Things are never so small that they can't be blown out of proportion!
- 8) Never try to teach a pig to sing; it wastes your time and it annoys the pig. (gee, I can't imagine what this might apply to -tav)
- 9) If you don't know what you're doing, you won't know when to quit!
- 10) Never look back unless you intend to go that way!

Thanks to all who assisted me greatly with material for this issue, especially Ben Malisow, who couldn't be more prolific if he was a rabbit in heat.

DODO FORUM

Dear DODO,

This last summer, I was going on leave from COS airport to Atlanta. I never thought that a regular airline flight would ever be the setting for my most pleasurable, exciting moment in my life.

I'm five foot nine inches and about 165 pounds, and I would say I'm not an unattractive nor an attractive person. I am no Arnold Schwarzenegger, but my physique is somewhat muscular. I was flying alone in civvies on my way home after Christmas Break. For two weeks I had been away from the Academy and training freshmen, plus the week of finals when we can't touch the little buggers anyway. Ever since the end of BCT and the arrival of weak training policies for '94, I had been getting really stressed for some good old-fashioned hard training.

Imagine my feeling of delight when I noticed two freshmen sitting across the aisle from me, shifting around uncomfortably in their service dress and looking like they'd just finished off the last cake crumbs in their mothers' kitchens. Noticing that I was eyeing them hungrily, they both immediately nudged each other and straightened up in their seats. That wouldn't do for me, though. Maybe some of the more slack two-degrees in my squad, but not me.

Getting more uncomfortable as the minutes went by, the shorter one finally got up and hurried back to the bathroom. Now was my chance! No AOCs around, no upperclass and most of all...no bad training policies to follow. As you can imagine, my blood pressure was really shooting up right about now, and I could feel my index finger starting to straighten in anticipation of the chin pushing it was about to get. Luckily all the food which the smack had downed on break had gone straight to the hips and it was taking longer to get to the bathroom than anticipated. I timed it perfectly; just as the smack got to the door, I was there, demanding an easy quote. You see, I always like to warm up in to training. That way the hard quotes hit harder and get the smacks more worked up.

Well, the sweat really got going fast. I was so excited I almost had to go into the bathroom myself. The smack was racking up chins faster than a Mitchell Hall waiter can clear a table! And I don't need to mention that thumbs were on seams and guts were sucked in. My wildest fantasies were being realized right there in front of my eyes! I had picked a winner of a smack, that's for sure.

Finally, permission to use the bathroom was granted and we went our separate ways. When I reached my seat, the second smack eyed me with suspicion. But I was more than satisfied and did not desire any more training. When the smack I trained returned, it was obvious in our exchange of glances that something special had definitely occurred. I leaned back, wishing for a cig -- but it was a non-smoking flight, of course. It had been a great flight, the best of my life, and I knew that for the rest of the year whenever we might pass each other on the terrazo we would exchange a special look. A look that would always take me back to the time when my fantasies became reality.

3) I'm far too tempted to embarrass people!
- February 1991

Hi! How's everything going? Just fine here. This is Sunday, and what a beautiful day. It's almost as gorgeous outside as your looks are very pleasing to the eye. I am so glad that you went to the dance with me. Thank you very much! And please thank your Mom for me for letting me use her car. [redacted] was right when she told me you looked like a million [redacted] bucks. Those were her exact words. In fact, she said that if you were her and [redacted]'s daughter you wouldn't have been allowed to go out of the house looking that good. And believe me you looked that good and even better. Could you pretty please send me a picture of you either in that dress or any picture for that matter. I just want to be able to look at you whenever I have the urge to which seems to be all the time these days.

Like last night I couldn't get to sleep because all I was thinking about was how beautiful you are. I'm sorry if that embarrasses you. But at least to me it is the truth. I can't help but think of how lucky I am to have you as a girlfriend. The only thing that I would want to change about you is that look that I asked your Mom about on Saturday at the restaurant. Maybe I just know you that well, but to me it does look like you are bored or thinking about one of life's many mysteries. Since you are always saying that you are not thinking about anything in particular I am now to assume that you are bored with my company. I am really sorry that I am that boring. Please just give me another chance to prove that I am worthy of your love.

After you left on Saturday I had an interesting end to my day. First of all I fell asleep at my Mom's apartment. I was just so tired after we left the restaurant. Anyway I woke up and watched the movie 'In Country' with Bruce Willis. It was excellent. Especially the end. I cried because the whole movie was about readjusting to life after the Vietnam War for Vietnam Veterans, and they ended up at the Vietnam War Memorial in Washington, D.C. Then I was supposed to come back to school to study for the two tests I have this week, but I ended up watching the three point shoot-out and the slam dunk competition. So it ended up being about 9:00 p.m. before I got back to school. When I got back some of my friends wanted to get some alcohol. So we borrowed a car and went back to my Mom's apartment so she could buy it for us. She did. Then we went to all of these different stores to try to find some Coca-Cola, but no one had any in the chilled two liter bottles. We ended up at a 7-Eleven in the middle of nowhere to get the pop. Then we went to Taco Bell and ordered 10 tacos, 6 bean burritos, and 2 soft tacos for four people. Needless to say we had enough to eat. I just want to stress right this second that I didn't drink any of the alcohol. I couldn't after I spent a perfect evening and next day with you. I hope you don't think any less of me because my Mom and I helped to get my friends the alcohol. We finally got back to the

As a public service message, the Dodo is proud to bring to light one of the most prolific problems ailing the cadet wing:

THE PLIGHT OF THE PROBLEM RACKER...

Stage

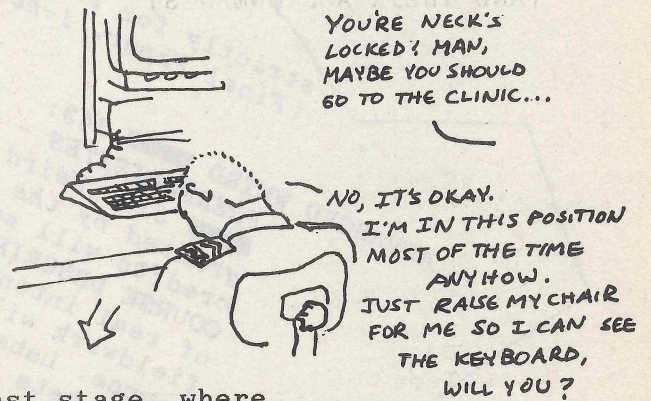

#1 According to Capt. Humperdink of the Counseling Center, the first sign of trouble is usually denial; the cadet refuses to recognize the problem:

#2... The second stage of the disease is usually refusal; the cadet will try to hide the problem by sneaking naps in wherever possible:

#3.

The most chronic stage, and the one where the illness must be halted before serious damage done, is chutzpah; the cadet accepts that there is a problem, but denies wanting to change:

WHAT THE... WHO IS THAT BEHIND YOUR BEDUNIT?
 AN '89 GRAD, I THINK, OR AT LEAST HE WOULD'VE BEEN. WE CALL HIM BERNIE.
 WHAT'S HE GOT IN HIS HAND?
 EE346 NOTES.

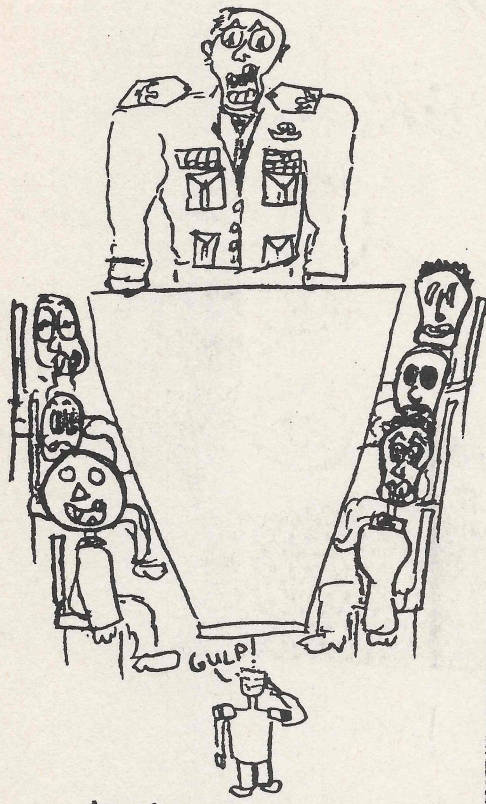

#4.

The last stage, where the cadet has gone beyond hope, is comatose:

If you know someone with symptoms of this affliction, or you have the problem, please contact the Counseling Center, immediately (unless they have reached Stage 4, then just put them out of their misery, peacefully). Remember, only YOU can prevent forest fires. This has been a public service message from the concerned staff here at the Dodo, where most of the problem is.
